A private letter from China says that the soldiers at Tien-tsin are using the cannon balls in the arsenal to pave the roads. They have found an enormous quantity of iron shot and shell of different sizes which some ingenious Yankee suggested would be a good substitute for paving stones.

Polly Larkin.

Sweeping is the bane of some housekeepers' lives. They would rather wash dishes than sweep, or even do a day's washing and ironing, the latter being mere child's play compared to the sweeping that wears them out and leaves them too tired to see the silver lining to the cloud of dust they have swept up from room to room.

As one little housekeeper expressed it the other day after the sweeping was over, "She ached all over." "It is no light matter, Polly, to sweep our big house. For various reasons I have matted on several of the bedroom floors, namely, for economy's sake, it is much cheaper than the most ordinary ingrain carpet and wears better; it is more cleanly, as it can be wiped up every week, and from that point of view is more healthful, to my mind; but I would rather sweep a brussels carpet any day than matting or linoleum, which is almost as bad. The dust sticks and rolls back so you think you are through, and lo and behold there lays fragments of dust here and there all over the room. When you have gone over it the second and the third time and still those little particles of dust continue to appear, you begin to think pretty hard and the pent up thoughts I am afraid would not do to read at the annual report of our missionary meetings for the good sisters and brethren who never have to view a broom might think that home missionaries to make a house to house canvass would be needed more than foreign missions. Did you ever sweep a matting or linoleum-covered floor, Polly? If you have you will understand my feelings. I don't believe I could ever do penance for the most unheard of crime by sweeping, for my heart would be so filled to overflowing with rebellious and uncharitable thoughts that I would get into trouble worse than ever. When I hear a woman say she likes to sweep I put her down as a hypocrite or the worst freak it has been my lot to meet. No, I don't like sweeping, I abhor it and I'm not martyr enough to the worthy cause of housekeeping to pretend that I like it and that I go about it cheerfully and uncomplainingly. If I don't give outward expression to it I am like an internal volcano, fuming and fretting and threatening to break out into explanatory words at any moment."

Dear me, thought Polly, she makes sweeping harder than it ought to be, for my name's not Polly Larkin. It is the little mounds of dust that roll back into the corners and under the stoves and chairs and sticks so affectionately and clingingly to the rough ends of the matting. She raises a cloud of dust I will warrant that bathes everything in a veil of gray, that is in itself enough to stifle one and make anyone look through somber glasses. There is no need of that. It is so easy to avoid this mantle of dust and keep it on the floor where it belongs and not fill the air and your lungs with the little particles that eventually settle on every object in the room, or manage to congregate together and roll under the stove and the chairs in obstinate little piles that defy the broom to gather them in by whisking off a few inches as though they were aiming to assist you in developing your muscles and learning you to cultivate a sweet and lovable disposition under the most trying circumstances. It is so easy to avoid all this if you only know how.

This is the way Polly managed it when I lived in the country with a garden of my own filled with roses. In the morning while the dew was yet on the flowers, the girl, while the family was yet at breakfast went out into the garden with a basket on her arm and went from rosebush to rosebush picking all the full-blown roses that would have scattered their velvety petals at the first caress of the summer breeze. It was good for the bushes to have the full-blown flowers removed, and it was good for the girl who enjoyed every moment in the fresh air gathering the flowers, and drinking in the fresh crisp morning air. She would come in with her cheeks rosy, her eyes bright and the best kind of an appetite. Then when she was ready for her sweeping she went from room to room scattering the fragrant, dewy petals. Whisk went the broom and the velvety petals flew almost as thick as the autumn leaves, after Jack Frost has touched them with his magic brush. There was no dust and only the gentle rustle of the leaves, as she swept them with little quick flourishes over the room and finally into the awaiting dustpan. How sweet and clean the rooms were, too, and how fragrant with the spicy odor of the discarded roses.

Roses are far too precious in city life to be used in such a humble way, and far too expensive as well. So a substitute must be found. What do you think it is? Nothing more or less than old newspapers, torn into fragments and soaked in a pan of water until they are thoroughly wet, then squeezed out and thrown lavishly over the carpets to be brushed, ingrain, matting linoleum or painted floors. Then the wielder of the broom gets in her deadly work, the dirt just rolls into a little heap, all the airiness of the dust is gone, it can't float or roll for the damp paper has just gathered it up, and if the paper is well moistened all the flights of your imagination cannot raise the atoms of dust into the cloud you have dreaded. There it lays, all the airiness taken out of it, sullen, and a disgusted looking little heap of dirt to be gathered into the dust-pan and burned, at least so it looks to Polly.

One of the best little housekeepers I know of, in the absence of rose leaves and not an advocate of wet paper, uses tea leaves. She saves the leaves from every meal, and when sweeping day comes moistens them, scatters them over carpets and the broom does the rest. Her home is always sweet, clean, dainty and healthful, and when mentioned she says with one of her winning smiles, "tea leaves, Polly, work the charm of neatness and healthfulness."

Experiments With Power of Light Flashes.
William A. Eddy, at Bayonne, N. J., has completed, in a measure, his tests of the reflecting power of mirror sun-flashes as compared with sunlight and cloud-shaped snow. As a result of recent experiments Eddy found that mirror sun flashes were about fourteen times as bright as cloud-shaped snow and eight times as bright as sunlight snow. Previous experiments showed that sunlight snow was only about twice as bright as snow shadowed by clouds of ordinary density. Eddy considers these experiments important in that they bear upon the visibility of army signals from snow-capped mountain peaks. The test of the relative lighting powers was made by taking a sixteen-candle-power oil lamp held close to a sheet of paper, the center of which had been made semi-transparent by oil. The test was to see how near or far the lamp had to be held to the paper before its yellow glare was effaced by the white glare caused by the sunlight snow outside. Eddy thinks from these experiments that it is highly improbable that a light flash seen from Mars at Flagstaff, A. T., could have resulted from the sudden lighting up with sun rays or snow which had been previously cloud shadowed. He calculates that, supposing the Martians to be using mirrors to reflect the light, it would be a stupendous undertaking to effect the result described. It would require mirrors, he calculated, covering over 100 square miles to produce the shaft of light.

Old Soldiers to Colonize.
The founding of a great co-operative agricultural colony of old soldiers, which is expected to have a membership of 21,000 and to occupy a large tract of land in Oklahoma, is the object of an organization, the articles for which are to be filed. The corporation will include veterans of Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Ohio, Kansas, Nebraska, Missouri and South Dakota. The scheme is already so far advanced that options have been assured on 80,000 acres of land. A committee of seven will be in charge of the colony, one from each state represented. There is no expectation of profit by any individual, it being provided that any gains shall go into the general treasury. Ten thousand shares are issued at $25 each, and all have been taken by veterans who want to improve their condition and secure homes in the new country. It is the intention to lay out a city in the center of the colony, which will be established in the eastern part of the territory. The rest of the land is to be cut up into farms of areas easy to handle. No member will be permitted to hold less than five acres nor more than 160 acres. Alternate lots in the city and tracts of land in the colony will be held for future sale to desirable newcomers, the proceeds to go into a common fund. Mr. P. H. Fitzgerald, the Indiana member of the committee, says that most of the 21,000 prospective members will be on the ground by December next, preparing to improve their property.

Blue Rays Found to Be a Good Curative.
Medical circles in New York are excited over the discovery of a young Russian physician, M. Minin, regarding the curative properties of blue light. Struck by a common notion among Russian peasantry that a sick person on whom the sunlight falls through blue glass feels relief from pain, Minin began an elaborate series of experiments, and he now publishes the result in the leading medical journal of St. Petersburg. Minin used an electric light through various shades of blue and violet glass. He demonstrated that in particular classes of nerve disorders and in neuralgia of the face blue rays alleviate acute pain. He also conducted successful experiments with cases of internal hemorrhage. Minin uses an ordinary sixteen-candle-power 100-volt electric lamp, the light of which falls through pieces of ordinary blue glass. The length of time during which the patient is exposed to the light varies from ten to fifteen minutes.

CALIFORNIA.
ALAMEDA.
Henry M. Schuster, the Berkeley student who was injured while practicing pole-vaulting, died from his injuries. Immediately after the accident, which happened on the college grounds, the injured student was removed to a sanitarium, where he was attended by three physicians, who diagnosed his injury as being a fracture of two of the vertebrae just above the shoulders. The patient was completely paralyzed.

The members of St. Paul's Swedish Evangelical Lutheran Church dedicated their new house of worship at the corner of Tenth and Grove streets, Oakland, with impressive ceremonies. The dedicatory address in Swedish was delivered by Rev. C. J. E. Hanterius of San Francisco, president of the California Conference, and in English by Dr. C. M. Eshborn of Kingsburg, Cal. The new building cost $7100.

BUTTE.
Hugh Turner, a young farmer of Nord, met death in a peculiarly distressing manner. He had been driving a disc harrow on the Coosel place, near the town of Nord, when the harrow found. Other men went to look for him and found him lying across the tongue of the harrow with his left leg under the machine. The unfortunate man had been killed by the harrow. The sharp disk passed over his right leg his team stopped. The blade had cut the leg almost entirely off and the heavy machinery held the man in that position until he died to death. He had been working for some time on the harrow. Turner was a well known and highly respected young farmer of Butte county.

CALAVERAS.
Two hold-ups took place on the country road near Wallace, and in attempting to capture the robbers Samuel L. Holman of Calaveras county, one of the men who was held up, was fatally shot. Holman conducted a saloon in the small mining town of Comanche, and returned home after the capture of the robbers. He was a deputy sheriff of Calaveras county and a constable of Jenny Lind township, and was noted for his courage. He was 35 years old and leaves a wife and six children.

KERN.
L. C. Johnson, a laborer at a ranch twelve miles south of Bakersfield, attempted to take a knife away from Gee Gorey, a Chinese cook, and in the scuffle that ensued the Chinese was fatally shot in the stomach. Johnson, who says he came from San Francisco, gave himself up to the officers. The trouble grew out of a complaint made by Johnson about the poor quality of the tea served at dinner. The Chinese became enraged and went to his room and secured two knives. Johnson took one of the knives away from the Chinese, but in the attempt to incorporate it, to erect a $150,000 mill at Stockton to make straw paper and binders' board. At a place called the material, straw, he obtained any cheaper than it can be at Stockton nor in such a large quantity. The transportation facilities could not be so excellent, several sites convenient to railroad and wharf are obtainable.

SANTA CLARA.
For the first time in five years the water in the sub-strata of the Santa Clara valley has reached the high-water mark, and the artesian wells have begun to flow. It seems probable that the previous soaking that the valley has received brought the water nearly up to the mark, and the last rain completed it. All the agricultural and horticultural interests of the valley are highly elated as the prospects for the coming season. The rainfall for the last spell was .68 of an inch, making a total of 21 inches for the season.

SANTA CRUZ.
General Dickinson and Adjutant-General Seaman, who arrived at Santa Cruz to arrange for the transfer of part of Laveaga Heights to the State and to arrange for the survey of the site for the division encampment.

STANISLAUS.
H. J. Severns of Modesto stabbed his wife with a pocket knife at the Alta Lodge house, Sunday. The blade narrowly missed the jugular vein. He was slightly intoxicated. He was arrested, and it was found that his own neck had been cut, but the long gashes had not struck a vital spot. He refused to say how the wound was inflicted. Last May he shot his wife with a shot-gun in Modesto, but claimed it was an accident. He was not prosecuted for that shooting.

SANTA BARBARA.

With the thermometer 30 degrees below zero and in the darkness of night, hundreds of men and some women made a mad rush to make locations on the reserved crown claims and fractions in the Klondike.

A rich strike has been reported from Seventy-Mile creek, twenty miles below Eagle City. The news has caused much excitement all along the Yukon river. At the present time there is a marked movement among the miners toward the creeks on the American side of the boundary line.

BRITISH COLUMBIA.
Andrew Carnegie has offered to give $50,000 for a public library building for Vancouver, the only condition being that the city furnish a suitable site and agree to contribute $5000 annually for the maintenance of the library.

WASHINGTON.
Thomas L. Gamble is having an artesian well sunk on his farm near the Cleburn depot and close to the Roslyn coal mines. At 384 feet a stratum of gaseous shale was struck, and a lighted match having been applied the gas ignited. The flame shot up thirty feet, and it was with difficulty that the opening of the well was closed and the flame subdued. An inch pipe was connected with the well and the gas coming from it was ignited and has been burning steadily. This and other evidences of oil and gas are causing an oil boom in Eastern and Western Washington, and oil companies are being incorporated throughout the State.

ARMY AND NAVY.

UNITED STATES.
The squadron of the Fifth Cavalry, stationed at Fort Myer, Va., has left for San Francisco en route to the Philippines.

Captain Gulick of the Forty-seventh Volunteer Infantry has received the surrender of the insurgent Major Pulay, with forty-nine officers and 240 men, at the town of Gubat, Southern Luzon, in the Philippines.

The War Department at Washington has received word of the death of Captain Richard B. Paddock, of the Sixth Cavalry, at Tien-tsin, China, from pneumonia. Captain Paddock was appointed from Illinois in October, 1895.

It is reported that the small steamers Oriente and Caraman, plying on the Pasig river and Laguna de Bay, have been seized, it being alleged that they were trading with the insurgents. Contraband articles were found aboard the steamers. The Oriente had been seized previously, but had been released, the evidence against her not being sufficient to justify her being held. This time, however, the evidence is stronger.

Private Jacob Henderson, Company "A," Tenth Infantry, who was convicted in the Philippines of manslaughter for killing Corporal Herbert Chase of the same regiment, and sentenced to imprisonment for fifteen years at hard labor in Bilibid Prison, Manila.

Thirtieth Infantry, made up almost wholly of men from Illinois and Michigan, reached San Francisco March 13, twenty-three days from Manila and sixteen days and ten hours from Nagasaki. This time, while above the average of the transports, was slow for the Hancock, which, while known as the Arizona, was one of the speed wonders of the Atlantic.

Officers in charge of the recruiting service of the army are the meeting with the success that attended the enlistment of two years ago in the volunteer force provided for by Congress. That force of 35,000 was raised in three months and more than 10,000 a month. Enlistment in February under the Army reorganization act was less than 3000. At that rate it would take nearly a year to bring the army to the maximum 100,000. The officials do not hope to raise the average above 5,000. They say they do not want to enlist too rapidly, because if the 35,000 men now required should be obtained within two months, the army would be going out at about the same time, in three years from now, when another reorganization would be necessary.

John L. Fox, a private of Company A, Thirtieth Volunteer Infantry, who returned from Manila on the transport schooner, spent half the time in the Philippines as a prisoner in the hands of the Filipinos. From January 18, 1899, until the 1st of September of the same year, young Fox was held by the Manila garrison in mountain fastnesses, with no knowledge of his whereabouts nor of the intentions of his captors concerning his own disposition. He escaped several times, only to be recaptured again and threatened with summary punishment. He was determined to get away. He had reason to believe that the threat might be carried out, for a fellow prisoner named John Kenney, from Illinois, also a private of the Thirtieth, was deliberately shot by the Filipinos for attempting to escape.

CHINA.
Colonel Ledebur's column stormed a gate of the great wall eight miles west of Paoingfu, and captured three guns. A dispatch from Hasvogel Kop says that General De Wet escaped northward by a forced march with 400 men. His objective is believed to be the vicinity of Kroonstad. Four other Boer leaders are still in the southwestern part of the Orange River Colony. Now that General De Wet is back in his country it will be almost impossible to operate against him. He is solidly backed by the commando dissolves to meet again a few days later.

The Germans, led by Captain Ledebur, captured the Chung Shun pass between the provinces of Chi-li and Shan-shi, after several days of fighting. The result was brilliantly achieved by the Bavarian battalion, which marched 125 miles from Paoing-fu in four days through mountains and over difficult trails, and then, after a long and apparently impregnable position on the wall at the highest point of the pass. They had several hundred troops and artillery of every description. The Germans attacked them with 1000 infantry and two howitzers. The turning movement, over an almost impassable country, occupied seven hours and was very successful. The Chinese fled into the province of Shan-shi, leaving at least 100 dead and four Hotchkiss guns. The victory will have an excellent moral effect, as the Chinese believed that their fortified mountain belt was impregnable.

SOUTH AFRICA.
Only a few bands of Boers are now in Colony.

It is asserted that Kruger, through Dr. Leyds, has sent a long telegram to the British government, asking for details regarding negotiations.

Colonel Pilcher's column has cleared the country of Boers between Blomfontein and the Orange river. The column arrived at Blomfontein, bringing thirty prisoners and 3000 horses.

Advices from two great South African commercial houses confirm the advice that Lord Kitchener and Gen. Botha have been in negotiation for six days. Peace, or a long step toward the end of the war is looked for soon.

A special dispatch from Cape Town says the Boers lost forty killed in an engagement with an armed train near Rooenog. They mistook the train for one loaded with horses and allowed it to come within short range, whereupon fire was opened from the train and the Boers fled, some of them abandoning their rifles.

No further news has been received concerning the negotiations between Lord Kitchener and General Botha. The London Daily Express says that Lord Kitchener declared the surrender unconditional, while the question of the future treatment of the Boers was referred to London.

TURKEY.
Awful atrocities, including the massacre of whole villages by fire and by sword, are charged against the Turkish troops which have been "restoring order" in Macedonia. Fugitives who have arrived at Salonica say that the Turkish soldiers have thus massacred the inhabitants of the villages and several other villages in Macedonia.

A priest named Maryoff says that over 600 persons were burned alive in their homes or cut to pieces by soldiers after the latter had set fire to the houses. Men, women and children were killed. The Turks have formed a cordon around the area of the massacre and devastation and prevent all efforts to ascertain the facts. The Christians are fleeing from the regions which the Turks have occupied.

It has been announced that the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company is importing Japanese miners to fill the places of strikers in their New Mexico coal mines. Nelson Morris, the millionaire packer, is planning the erection of a $2,000,000 packing-house at Honolulu. The proposed house is for the purpose of supplying the Hawaiian and other adjacent islands with fresh meat, without being compelled to use the present system of refrigeration. The idea is to transport the live stock to Honolulu and slaughter there.

With her is Miss Majors, who is also organizing a fund for the relief of the financial aid for her boy, who is to have a second trial on the charge of killing Captain Brown of the Ogden police force on May 1, 1899.

Edward Butt Jr., a prominent young business man, who has been writing the various local secret societies in Phoenix, A. T., has been arrested by the officers of the Grand Lodge of the Knights of Pythias of Arizona and charged with operating a lottery. He is said to have understood that there are other and larger charges to be preferred. The total amount of shortage is about $1500 missing by him during one year's incumbency of the office, he being grand keeper of the record.

The private bank of J. H. Springer, at Argonia, Kas., was broken into by three men and $2000 in cash and $4000 in registered Government 3 per cent bonds secured. The vault was entered through the brick wall and the safe was blown open with a dynamite charge. The robbery was not known until morning.

Rumors of the consolidation of three of the largest industrial corporations in the South, with a combined capital of nearly $100,000,000, are current in Birmingham. The three corporations are the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad Company, the Sloss Sheffield Steel and Iron Company and the Republic Steel and Iron Company, which together own two steel mills in Tennessee, one steel mill and two rolling mills in Alabama and Tennessee, and make the bulk of their iron in these two States. The combined capital and the total debt of the three companies is $63,000,000.

 FRIDAY, MARCH 22, 1901

BEATEN BY THIRTY-TWO VOTES.

After a fair and square contest, those in favor of continuing as heretofore voted the incorporation proposition down by 32 votes. The friends of incorporation on election day made little effort to win votes, not a proposed City Trustee rustled to further the cause, while those opposed were extremely active during the entire day. Seventeen more votes for incorporation would have turned the tide and Jackson would have become a city of the sixth class. The big vote for incorporation indicates that the proposed measure has many friends, and no doubt when the proper time arrives for another trial, if it ever does, the incorporationists will win by a handsome majority. Under different circumstances, many who opposed incorporation this time will vote and work for it the next time. The LEDGER still stands for incorporation and system instead of a haphazard, go-it-as-you-please, do nothing, dirt and wallow plan. Evidently the opportune time for advancement along sanitary lines has not arrived. The money and influence of the wealthy class of the town were against it, and, money being power, defeat followed as a matter of course. There is no practical remedy for the situation and therefore we must all decide to make the best of a bad matter.

THE California Legislature adjourned last Saturday, after an interesting and profitable session. Among the more important measures passed may be mentioned the "Ratification of the Lease of China Basin to the Santa Fe Company;" "Revision of the Penal and Civil Code and Code of Civil Procedure;" the "Primary Law;" "Apportionment Bill;" and the "Appropriation of $150,000 to build restraining dams." The investigation of San Francisco city officials relative to permitting dens of iniquity in Chinatown, amounted to nothing and may be written down as a farce. The inquiry into the expenditures of the Paris Commission answered the purpose of quieting clamor founded on gossip, and that's about all that can be said of that.

SHOULD abundance of rich ore be found in the Kennedy at the 2300 level, deep mining will no doubt become a common thing in Amador county. Capital will be forthcoming to sink our mines to the 2300 levels, or even lower, and Jackson will become one of the largest and wealthiest mining centers in the State. All this is possible, and in the opinion of many practical mining men, it is probable. In the light of the Kennedy rich strike, our people may look into the future and see great prosperity in store for them.

SENATOR PRITCHARD made it very plain before the adjournment of Congress, that he intends doing everything in his power to keep Senator Simmons out of the seat to which he was elected by the Democratic legislature of North Carolina, on the ground that the election of a majority of that legislature, was accomplished by fraud. Mr. Pritchard takes the ground that the Senate has jurisdiction to institute inquiry as to whether or not a state legislature has been elected by fraudulent or unfair means.

THERE is not a person old enough to reason in Jackson who does not believe that this camp should be properly sewered, cleaned and put in a safe and wholesome sanitary condition and that speedily. Will those who voted against incorporation kindly step forward and explain the proper steps to be taken to bring about this much needed and much desired change for the better. If you have a feasible plan, out with it. We are listening.

WE believe that it is generally admitted by both the "pros" and the "cons" that to the efforts of Mr. Richard Webb, who is one of the heaviest tax payers in the proposed city limits, is due the defeat of the measure for incorporation. Mr. Webb worked earnestly from the start, using his pen in the beginning and his tongue at the wind-up. He certainly believes that he has benefited the community by his indefatigable efforts. Time will tell. Perhaps he has.

PRESIDENT MCKINLEY followed the example of General Grant at the beginning of the second term, and sent the nominations of his entire Cabinet to the Senate, including that of Attorney General Griggs, who promised to remain at the head of the Department of Justice for a few weeks. At the last meeting of the Cabinet, all the members tendered their resignations so as to open the way for their re-nomination.

MR. BRYAN'S latest attempt to boss the democratic Senators trying to get the democrats to hold up the Army Appropriation bill, by filibuster and force an extra session of Congress, and the democratic Senators laughed at him and allowed the bill to be voted upon.

MINING BULLETIN OF W. H. STORMS

MOTHER LODE REGION OF CALIFORNIA.

Particular Attention Has Been Given to the Gold Mines of Amador County.

FREMONT MINE.

This property, 24 miles north of Amador City, comprises the Fremont, Gover, and Loyal Lode, 4200 feet on the lode. The principal work on this property is on the Gover Mine, the main shaft of which is down 1500 feet on an incline, being 1050 feet vertical. There are ten levels, and in the lower levels of the mine there are developed large masses of low-grade quartz. In the early part of the present year, a new shaft was started on the Fremont claim. This is an inclined shaft, sunk at an angle of 51 degrees below the horizon. It is started in the hanging wall of the vein, which is calculated to intersect in depth.

CENTENNIAL MINE.

This property is 14 miles northeast of Drytown. An inclined shaft has been sunk 565 feet, and sinking was in progress in April last. The shaft, started on the vein, passes into the foot-wall, and the following levels: vein at the 150, 250, and 350 feet. On the first level the vein was found to be 8 feet wide; on the second, 18 feet; and on the third, about 2 feet. The shaft will be continued to a depth of 1000 feet. The formation is greenstone schist (after diorite).

PLYMOUTH CONSOLIDATED MINE.

This property is at Plymouth, and has been idle for many years, but within the past year the old dumps have been worked with profit by Huntington mills. These dumps were estimated to contain over 250,000 tons of rock. The main shaft consists of four 5-foot Huntington mills with hydraulic sizers, Wilfley and Woodbury concentrators, and canvas plant. Power is furnished by water from the Hayward ditch, which has a head of 572 feet. The dumps were moved at very low cost by cutting in at their base and running an open cut directly into the end of the pile of rock. When a face of sufficient size had been exposed, a movable chute was placed against the face, by means of which all the rock above the level of the chute was easily delivered to cars beneath the chute. The rock was trammed to the mill, hoisted into the car by means of a hydraulic elevator, dumped onto the grizzlies, from which it passed to the rock breakers, falling into a bin. From the bin, the rock was delivered to automatic feeders, thence to the mills.

POCAHONTAS MINE.

This property is 14 miles east of Drytown, and includes the Pocahontas, Edson and California, the owners holding a bond on the Maryland claim adjacent. A vertical shaft has been sunk on the Pocahontas to the depth of 620 feet, with six levels. The formation is practically a black tuffaceous, pitted slate, to the west of which are the Mariposa clay slates. Over 1000 feet of cross-cuts have been run, extending from the Mariposa slates on the west to massive diorite on the east.

PIONEER MINE.

It is 1 mile south of Plymouth, and comprises a mile on the lode, which consists of two veins; the east or hanging-wall vein of massive quartz, and the west vein banded schist. The latter is usually the better vein. These veins occur in the black tuffaceous slates. An inclined shaft has been sunk 500 feet on the foot-wall vein, and in the several levels three shoots of ore have been developed. In some respects these shoots of ore are similar to those of the Central Eureka at Sutro Creek. The lower workings of the mine, however, are low-grade ore, and appear to have reached a zone of little or no pay rock, which seems to be a peculiar characteristic of many of the most important mines of Amador County. Geologically, the outlook for the future of the Pioneer Mine may be considered as encouraging, as there is no reason to anticipate that it may not at greater depth repeat the experience of the Kennedy and Argonaut, Central Eureka, and other mines in this county.

PHILADELPHIA MINE.

It is 4 miles north of Plymouth, near the Bay State. Several years ago this mine was opened by means of a large cut and drift, when operations were suspended, and the mine remained idle until the spring of 1900, when a new double-compartment shaft was started 100 feet south of the old open cut. This shaft had reached a depth of 80 feet early in June. Its hanging-wall is diorite; the foot-wall is black slate. The vein formation is 20 feet in width. There are kidneys of good rock on the foot-wall side. The shaft is equipped with a water-power hoist, capable of going 1000 feet.

IVANHOE MINE.

It is 14 miles northeast of Plymouth. The mine occurs in a zone of amphibolite schist, and is developed by a vertical shaft 130 feet deep, and also by an inclined shaft 120 feet. It has a 20-stamp mill and a steam hoist. It has been described in former reports, and was closed down in the spring of 1900.

SHENANDOAH MINE.

It is 14 miles northeasterly from Plymouth. This interesting vein adjoins the Red Cloud, described in former reports, on the south. The formation is diorite, which, near the vein, is altered to amphibolite schist. The shaft, early in May, had reached a depth of 375 feet, partly on the vein, but the lower portion in the foot-wall. Drifts were run at the 200 and 375 levels, the latter from a cross-cut. There are two veins in this fissure, one a massive vein of quartz, the other a banded or ribbon vein. On the south side of the shaft the banded vein lies on the hanging-wall side of the fissure, but on the north side it is found on the foot-wall side, being separated from the massive vein by a small gouge. The massive vein appears to be the older, it having been broken and crushed by the movements of the rocks. The banded portion of the vein, however, is quite regular, and shows no structural indication of disturbance. In addition to gold, there are found iron, lead and copper sulphides. The shaft has been sunk between two shoots of ore, which have a southerly trend.

RED CLOUD MINE.

It is 14 miles northeast of Plymouth, adjoining the Shenandoah on the north. It has geological characteristics similar to those of the Shenandoah. It is idle. The shaft has been sunk to a depth of 365 feet, the upper portion of which was caved in time of heavy visit. The surface croppings are exposed in cuts and show two veins striking N. 30 degrees W. and dipping 65 degrees to the east. The shaft appears to have been sunk at a point where a fault has displaced the vein, giving the appearance of two veins, whereas there is really but one.

Election Day.

The day, March 19, 1901, set apart by promulgated decree of the Board of Supervisors as the one upon which the "battle of ballots" was to be fought to determine whether Jackson should or should not become a city of the sixth class, was a typical California one. The weather was simply perfect, just cool enough for comfort and in every way lovely. The three voting precincts with their quota of officials, were open and ready for business promptly and then the war began. There was no argument of note on the streets during the day. Those in favor of incorporation were entitled to vote, proceeded to the proper precinct, cast the ballot, and almost immediately returned to other duties. Those opposed, especially a few leaders, were on the qui vive, however, from morning till night, using every argument imaginable to defeat the measure, which they succeeded in doing, as reference to the unofficial returns in this paper will show. We are pleased to be able to truthfully say that nothing occurred during the day to interfere with perfect peace and quiet. No heated discussions; no boisterous talk; no infringement of the rules of decency and decorum, but gentlemanly conduct on the part of all participants during the entire day. The table of the votes cast will give further particulars.

Harrison's Body At The State Capitol.

Fifty thousand people took a last look at the face of ex-President Harrison at the Capitol building of the State of Indiana, last Saturday. For nine hours a continuous stream of people passed the coffin, and when the doors were closed several thousand more were waiting patiently in line to pay a last tribute of respect to a great man.

The body lay in state until 10 o'clock and not once during the hours was there a break or halt in the lines which passed rapidly by on the right and left of the casket.

It was Indiana's day with her dead, and most touchingly was the esteem and honor in which General Harrison was held by his fellow citizens revealed. In front of the Harrison home, along the streets through which the remains were carried on their way to and from the State House, in the lines that stretched at times a half mile from the doors of the Capitol, men, women and children stood for hours waiting their opportunity to pay a tribute of respect to the dead.

It was an immense throng, but one more easily handled, or rather, one that required less handling, never gathered anywhere. There was no jostling, no disorder, no disturbance of any kind.

Not a single objectionable feature marred the day. The weather was perfect.

The Night Before.

Love Hall was fairly filled on Monday evening by ladies and gentlemen desirous of hearing the question of incorporation discussed. The Band furnished good music throughout the evening.

At 8 o'clock the meeting was called to order and P. Buffington introduced E. C. Rust as Chairman of the meeting. W. H. Willis was elected Secretary. Neil A. Macquarrie was the first speaker for incorporation. He was followed by Richard Webb who was against the measure. Judge R. C. Rust then spoke in favor of it. An invitation was tendered to anyone in the hall who wished to speak either for or against the proposed measure to do so. No one responded and Senator John F. Davis proceeded to make the closing speech which was cheered from beginning to end. Senator Davis paid his respects to the argument of Mr. Webb and frequently gave solar-plexus blows. Mr. Webb, in his talk, had paved the way for plain speaking and Davis took up the gauntlet Webb threw down and things at Love Hall were red hot for a time.

The Jackson Brewery.

One day last week the editor of the LEDGER, through the courtesy of Mr. Gottlieb Woehle, the efficient Superintendent of the institution, and, by the way, a thorough gentleman, had the pleasure of ascertaining just how the popular beverage—Beer—is made.

Mr. Woehle accompanied us through the Brewery and explained the process of beer making fully. We spent a most interesting hour with the gentleman. The recent improvements which Mr. Strohm has made to his plant, places it among the best equipped establishments of its kind in this part of California. Mr. Strohm has spent a large sum of money for improved methods and machinery besides the alteration of the building, which was also expensive. He now has a very complete establishment in every respect.

How Is This?

W. H. Weaver, a commercial traveler who makes regular business trips here, donated $2.00 to the incorporation expense fund one day last week, stating, as he paid the money, that he hoped the streets of Jackson would be kept clear of mud if incorporation carried. "The last time I was here," said Mr. Weaver, "the team I was driving on Broadway splashed mud on the ladies' dresses who were walking on the sidewalk, and I felt so ashamed, although I could not possibly avoid it, that I would rather donate $20 than have it occur again."

Young Mothers.

Group is the terror of thousands of young mothers, because its outbreak is so agonizing and frequently fatal. Shiloh's Cough and Consumption Cure acts like magic in cases of Croup. It has never been known to fail. The worst cases relieved immediately. Price, 50c, 50c and $1. For sale by A. Goldner, the Druggist.

Constable Ed Kay added several new recruits to Sheriff Gregory's chain gang yesterday.

NEWS FROM OUR CORRESPONDENTS

THE DEATH OF MRS. SHUTTLE NEAR PLYMOUTH.

Personal Mention of Amador People—May Have More Stamps—Notes From Clinton.

PLYMOUTH, March 20, 1901.—The St. Patrick's Ball given here last Saturday, March 16, proved to be a financial success. Most of the towns of the county were well represented.

Mr. and Mrs. Tippets paid a visit to relatives in Sutter last week.

Miss Barnes of Pine Grove, is the guest of her sister, Mrs. Boyer.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Shuttle took place here last Saturday, March 16, Rev. Darling officiating. The deceased was a native of Utah, aged 26 years, 6 months and 27 days. She leaves a husband and three small children here, and a father, mother, four sisters and one brother in Utah, to mourn her loss. At the present time she was residing with her husband and children at Nashville, near the Bay State mine. She was loved by all that knew her as she was blessed with a very amiable disposition.

Miss Stella Cress, who was the guest of Mrs. J. Dohman, returned to Sacramento Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Boyer went to Pine Grove last week to attend the funeral of the latter's uncle.

Mr. E. Riggan of Angels Camp, was in town yesterday.

Miss Lottie Bush, who has been the guest of Mrs. C. Shields for some time, took her departure for Latrobe Sunday, where she intends remaining for a period of time before returning to her home in Oakland.

Mrs. Darling was called to her home in Shasta this week to the bedside of her mother, who is very sick.

Mr. Tom Crain and wife moved last week to Shendash Valley.

Rumor has it that the Centennial mine will start in a few days, we only trust that it will.

Rev. Bowman, who came from below to help in conducting the revival meetings, is still with us.

A baseball game will be played here next Sunday, the Plymouth and Amador's. "OMEGA."

Miss Hinkson of Plymouth, spent Saturday in Amador. "E. LOIS."

VARIOUS PLACES.

The Exchange Hotel at Drytown has been given a thorough cleaning. Proprietor Giannini has favored both the inside and outside of the building with a coat of paint.

A party of horse traders has been touring Amador county the past few weeks.

If statements given out by men in a position to know are true, the Keystone mill at Amador City will be increased to sixty stamps. It now has forty stamps. It is said that contractors are now figuring on the work. This means that the Keystone mine is just as valuable now as it ever was.

The dance given in Plymouth last Saturday evening in honor of St. Patrick's Day, was a repetition of the good time that is always had at a like party in that place. The several towns of the county were well represented.

S. K. Thornton is deeply interested in the prospects at the Shenandoah mine near Plymouth, of which he is superintendent. Some prospecting is being done. The rock is being crushed at the Ivanhoe mill.

CLINTON.

Mr. Tangerman is able to be up and out of doors occasionally but is still far from being well.

Matthew Hackney has recovered from his sickness and although the oldest inhabitant he is the most spry.

Professor Gordon examined the school this week and found the teacher and children all right, the school-house as good as the circumstances allowed, but expressed an opinion that the fruit trees be pruned, the playground cleaned and a new fence put up.

Now that the weather is fine there will be an entertainment at the Wieland Store next moonlight night, the proceeds after paying expenses will be used to liquidate installment due on the purchase price of the school and the lumber bill for what repairs were made last fall.

Two gentlemen wearing spectacles, long yellow legged boots with large eyelets and broad sheepskin laces, wide and strong enough to lace the Argonaut Mill belt, Canada caps and Jackets (a la salvation army) attached to rather wide belts, studded with cheap imitation silver of awkward design, have been in this vicinity with a traveling chemical outfit testing water, shale, gravel sand, etc., and questioning the older inhabitants concerning any kind of oil or greasy spots they may have ever noticed. They said they were hunting oil and had been going along this belt for a week. They also said this belt, cynite, granite and diorite with black slate and shale was right on top of the sand where the oil was beneath. Now several people are claiming "Didn't I tell you so."

JONATHAN HUTCHISON.

COMMUNICATION.

PLYMOUTH, March 9, 1901.

Editor LEDGER:

If you will kindly give me a small space in your paper I will try and state a few facts.

In the first place I will say God bless our noble Assemblyman, Fred L. Stewart, in his noble act of killing the Zimmermann bill in the House. Had I known that such a thing was being enacted in the Assembly I, Ed. Neff's wife, would have been there to fight it, and in regards to the so-called death-bed confession of my former husband, Edward Neff, it is a flat falsehood.

My husband, Ed. Neff, never made any such confession to any one, and I defy any one, I don't care who it is, to prove that he ever made such a confession.

I was with my husband night and day during his illness, as were his brothers and sisters, also a sister of mine, and no stranger was allowed to stay alone with him, and he was not allowed to talk and for days before his death could not utter a word, scarcely, owing to the condition of his throat. He could not even swallow the nourishment given him and as death came unexpected to him he could not have made any such confession. I stood by his death-bed for hours before he died and he never uttered a word but one as he lay dying he reached out one hand took hold of my arm and said "Mary" and that was all. I've lately heard that Zimmermann was pardoned on that so-called confession. Now I should like to know how he could procure a pardon without a petition being signed by those at that death-bed or being circulated in this county from where he was sent from. I don't see how that lie was ever started. It's the most diabolic falsehood ever told by human lips. I do blame my husband for not making a confession and clearing his name of the crime all together for he could have done so if he chose. Zimmermann knows full well he was rightly punished, but I will say here that there were others who should have been punished with him, and here I will say my husband was innocent of any part in the crime and why he died with a stain of dishonor on his name to save others, is more than any one living will ever know. He died with his secret and so will those who still live and know it. Zimmermann got out of Prison and I should have thought that was enough without trying to get money out of the government. I should like to ask Senator Landers why, before presenting that bill, he did not come into this county and look up the history of August Zimmermann. Some of our best citizens were witnesses against him. I heartily thank Fred L. Stewart for beating them out of the money they hoped to get. If we had a few more such men as he in our Assembly our State would not have to pay so many unnecessary bills.

I write this and flatly deny that Edward Neff ever made any confession of any kind whatever. I could write a great deal more on this subject but will drop this for the present. But for the sake of myself, my children and the dead, I think the public at large should know that no "death-bed confession" of any kind whatever was made by Ed. Neff, and I think Governor Markham did wrong to pardon August Zimmermann on such a plea without positive proof, and such proof could come only from those around that death-bed and no such proof ever came from any one of us. Hoping this will find room in your valuable paper, I remain,

Respectfully,

MRS. KINMAN FRENCH,
(Formerly Mrs. Edward Neff),
Plymouth, Amador County, Cal.

P. S.—I will go into any Court in this land and swear that no such confession was ever made by Edward Neff.

Into the Sump.

Last Friday night, March 15, a skip with a number of men in it was descending the Zelle shaft, and when nearing the sump the engineer was not signaled properly and an accident resulted. It was not very serious, however, only one of the men being injured.

It appears that the engineer stopped the skip where the men ought to have alighted, and supposing all was right proceeded to lower the skip into the sump, it being a water skip. When the three men felt the skip strike the water two jumped into the water from which they were fished out by fellow miners uninjured. The third one, however, was not so fortunate. He held on to the rope and was dragged, his legs and hips bumping along on the timbers between the front wheels of the skip, some 700 feet up the shaft. He sustained a fracture of the left pelvic bone and other bruises. Dr. Gall has the case in charge.

A Fall In The Dark.

Night Watchman F. W. Parker met with quite an accident on Friday night of last week. He was conducting a late lodger to his bedroom in a building where carpenters had been engaged during the day in laying a new floor.

The job was left unfinished and Mr. Parker, who was familiar with the premises, but ignorant of the condition of the floor as left by the workmen, while guiding the belated man to his room in the dark, fell between the joists, sustaining a skinned limb and almost a cracked rib. He was able to be about in a few days, however.

Interviewer—Alderman Swelheld, I have come to get your views on the proposed change in the curriculum of the grammar school.

Alderman Swelheld—Curriculum! What's that? I'm ag'n it, whatever it is.

Alderman Swelheld, reading the report of the interviewer next morning: "Our distinguished townsman, Mr. M. T. Swelheld, was found at his charming home, surrounded by abundant indication of ripe scholarship and sturdy common sense. In reply to our reporter's question he said:

"I do not desire to force my opinions upon the public, but this I will say, that I have given to this question long and studious attention, incidentally examining into the curricula of institutions of learning both at home and abroad, and although I find in the existing course of study not a few matters for commendation, still, upon the whole, I cannot say that I should advise any radical change until I have further time to examine into the subject."

"By George, that feller's got my exact language, word for word! And he didn't take no notes neither! By George, what a memory that feller must have!"—Tit-Bits.

Surface Indications.

From "A Book on Dartmoor," written by the Rev. S. Baring-Gould, comes a story which might have come from a less trustworthy source.

The wild and romantic country of Dartmoor consists of a tableland with rugged peaks or tors and all but impassable marshes. After a dry summer it is easy to pick one's way across parts of it which at other times are full of pitfalls. At one of the latter periods a man was cautiously treading his way across one of the treacherous marshes when he saw a hat lying brim downward on the sedge. He gave it a gentle, good humored kick in passing and almost jumped out of his skin when a choked voice called out from beneath: "What be you a-doin to my 'at?"

"Be there now a chap under'n?" exclaimed the traveler.

"Ees, I reckon, and a boss under me likewise."

The Star.

"Now," we asked him, "who should be considered the star of your company?"

"The bloodhound, me boy, the bloodhound," said the gentleman that played Legree. "He has something to eat every day, whether the rest do or not."—Indianapolis Press.

Some One Who Would Like It.

"I don't like Muggins' face," said Twyn to Triplett. "He hasn't a pleasing countenance."

"But an auctioneer would like it," suggested Triplett.

"It is a countenance forbidding,"—Detroit Free Press.

How She Did It.

"So she refused you?"

"That's the impression I received."

"No, she didn't," said the girl who said "Ha, ha, ha!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer

THE COMMUTER.

How He Spends His Hours of Daily Railroad Traveling.

The much abused suburbanites, whom the cartoonists picture as coming to the city every morning from "Longmeadow," "Lost Man's Lane," "Prunehurst-by-the-Track" and other places with equally suggestive names, are an interesting class of individuals. The transient element of the city's population spends several hours every day whirling over the railroads. When the novelty of these daily bits of railroading has passed into the monotony of years of travel through the same country the commuter has learned to make the best of the time he spends on the rails.

The "card fiend" is a prominent figure in this class. Both morning and evening four or five games of cards are going on in every smoking car, and it is safe to say that thousands of dollars change hands in this "innocent amusement" while the players are hurrying to or from business.

Next to the "card sharp" is the man who only enjoys his cigar and paper. He is oblivious and sometimes out and down through the car exercising his repertory of latest jokes or sympathizing with some gloomy looking friend who thinks that all the world is against him. He seems to never grow weary in his long ride.

The train life of the commuter is now and then relieved by wrecks. Though tossed about and sometimes cut and bruised, he generally escapes serious injury. Such experiences as these he considers the spice and coloring of his existence.—New York Mail and Express.

Another interesting commuter is the individual who is on good terms with all his fellows. He travels up and down through the car exercising his repertory of latest jokes or sympathizing with some gloomy looking friend who thinks that all the world is against him. THE CENSUS OF 1790.

United States Population Then Was Less Than 4,000,000.

When the first census of the United States was taken in 1790, there were 16 states and the southwest and northwest territories. The returns fixed the population at 3,929,214, while those of 1890 give over 76,000,000, a fourteen-fold growth in 100 years.

In the first census nothing was sought but the number of inhabitants, and the task was assigned to United States marshals, who performed the work for several censuses. In the census library is a record of the first census, which shows that the census of 1790 was ordered in March and completed by October, 1791, a very creditable showing when the difficulty of communication is considered. The population was divided into five classes:—free white males of 16 years and upward, including heads of families; free white females, including heads of families; free white males under 16 years, other persons, slaves. Fourteen enumeration districts were mapped out of the 16 states and the population of the towns, counties and states given. All of the states except Maine and Massachusetts had slaves. Virginia led with a population of 747,610 whites and 292,000 slaves. North Carolina was second, with 393,751 whites and 100,000 slaves. Maryland had a population of 422,756, of which 103,036 were slaves. The slave population of the northern states is given as follows:

New Hampshire, 158; Rhode Island, 948; Connecticut, 2,764; New York, 21,324; New Jersey, 14,233; Pennsylvania, 3,237; Delaware, 8,887; Vermont, 10.

The population of the southwest territory was 35,691 whites and 3,417 slaves. The record is full of errors in calculation and addition, but is interesting in showing how the population has increased and how the art of census taking has developed with the population.—Baltimore Sun.

A BOY AND A RIFLE.

And the Trick the Father Played to Make the Youngster Careful.

Exact statistics on the subject are lacking, but it is certain that the man who "didn't know it was loaded" kills and maims annually a great many persons. The only safe rule with a gun is never under any circumstances to point it at anybody. One should always act on the assumption that it is loaded. Unfortunately, though, an average human being learns only by experience, and where a gun is concerned that often entails an awful price.

Bearing this in mind a veteran sportsman of this city adopted a unique method of impressing this lesson on his son. This is how he told the story:

"I want my son to be a sportsman, so that when he gets to be as old as my father he may have as many pleasant memories to look back to. Therefore, on his sixteenth birthday I gave him a rifle. And instead of reading him a long lecture on the necessity of handling the weapon carefully, I put up a job on him that would be far more effective. After he had spent a couple of hours in cleaning it and examining the mechanism, after the manner of healthy boys, I contrived unknown to him to slip a blank cartridge into the breach.

"Then I called him out into the yard and holding my hat in front of me, asked him to show me how he would take aim at it. There was an explosion, and he fell in a dead faint. You may think it meant of me, but I allowed him to think that only the badness of his aim or some intervention of Providence saved me from death. The lesson he learned will last him through life, because a terrible fright accompanied it. Some day when he gets old enough to have a boy of his own, I shall tell him of the trick I played on him."—New York Herald.

So It Was.

"Mamma, come quick! The catnip on the shelf."

"Drat that cat! I'll make fiddle strings of her in no time if I lay my hands on her! She's forever into something, and the enraged materfamilias vigorously pounded her way into the pantry."

"Where is she, Tommy? I don't see her."

"See who?"

"Why, you said the cat was on the shelf."

"I never said there was a cat on the shelf."

"Yes, you did. You said, 'The cat's up on the shelf.'"

"So I did, and I say it yet. The cat-snip on the shelf right before your eyes. Don't you see it? There in that old wine bottle, and he quietly but very swiftly dodged out into the kitchen—Pearson's Weekly.

Side Tracking the Sleuths.

First Burglar (in kitchen)—Wouldn't I sail into that grub if I wasn't under treatment for me dyspepsia!

Second Burglar—That's just why you'd order it, Bill. All the detectives knows about your dyspepsia, and if we clean out the provisions they'll never suspect you of being in this job.—Harlem Life.

With Emphasis.

"Say, Joe," remarked Stroller, who was anxious for a jaunt, "what do you say to a tramp liver dinner?"

"Generally," replied Joe Kow. "I say, 'Get out, or I'll turn the dog on you.'"—Philadelphia Record.

Don't Be Sparing of Your Love.

The power of love is one of the greatest gifts to humanity. It generates the sunshine of the moral universe, without which life would be a desert waste. Use this divine power without stint. Be prodigal of your love. Let it radiate freely. It will brighten the darkest places. It will gladden the sorrowing heart. It will lift you above the petty grind of life that so soon corrode the mind and sap the energies. It is the golden key that will admit you to the palace of the true life.—Success.

The Humorous Prime.

There is a story told of a candidate for the pulpit who was preaching an extempore trial sermon before the late Archbishop Tait and Dean Stanley.

In his extreme nervousness he began in a stammering way. "I will divide my congregation into two—the converted and the unconverted."

This proved too much for the prime's sense of humor, and he exclaimed, "I think, sir, as there are only two of us, you had better say which is which."—London Standard.

WAR BUREAU FRICTION.

General Miles is not the first occupant of his position to be at odds with the head of the war department.

Indeed it is a tradition that there should be irreconcilable differences of opinion between the secretary of war and the general commanding the army. When Sherman was in charge of army headquarters, the conflict of authority became so acute that the doughty hero of the march to the sea, driven to desperation by the slights he felt were put upon him, packed up his belongings and moved to army headquarters at the old capital of the Confederacy, Richmond, where he remained in solitary confinement during all the later years of his incumbency. Sheridan was as unfortunate as his predecessor in his relations with the secretary of war. He was not quite testy enough to allow himself to be driven from Washington, but there were continual clashes between him and Secretaries Lincoln and Radcliff during the day of his death. Schofield was able to get along with his civilian superiors without friction. He had tact in abundance and was a born diplomat. Nothing else could have saved him. He alone of all the officers recently in command of the army had understood the true relations of the general commanding with the secretary of war. He appreciated the fact that the commander in chief was, after all, subject to the orders of the secretary of war, and was to all intents a chief of staff, whose duty it was to see that those orders were carried into effect. Sherman and Sheridan were never able to adjust themselves to this relationship. They were soldiers and nothing else. Accustomed to command and to have their orders obeyed without question, it irritated them and angered them when a mere civilian untrained in the practice of war should be in a position to overrule their judgment in matters relating to a profession to which they had devoted their lives.—L. A. Coolidge in Ainslee's.
